In the past few months, pollsters have been asking what people consider to be the country's major problem. To no one's surprise, the overwhelming answer has been inflation — the increase in the cost of just about everything. Inflation has been built into the American economy, so it is not something new. What has caused the economic stress is the rapid rate at which inflation has spiralled upward. Saint Joseph's College, like all schools, is facing and fighting inflation. With fixed costs, such as food and fuel, a large part of the college's annual budget, it became necessary to increase the college's fees for room and board. This is the first fee increase since 1967.

To explain the reasons for the increase, which becomes effective Jan. 8, college President Fr. Charles Banet convened a student convocation before the Thanksgiving recess. The media reporting of the convocation proved to be misleading and inaccurate. Many people became confused with what the actual financial situation at the college was. The following interview with Tom Crowley '66, assistant professor of accounting and college financial controller, is intended to clear up the confusion and present an accurate picture of Saint Joseph's financial position.

CONTACT: For those who do not know, what are the responsibilities of a financial controller?

CROWLEY: My responsibilities are in budgeting, cash projections and forecasting. I deal mostly with the college's financial systems and procedures. Ideally, my job is to assist Fr. Wellman, Saint Joseph's vice-president for financial affairs, in making the best use of the money we have and plan for future financial programs.

CONTACT: When was the last time Saint Joseph's had a balanced budget?

CROWLEY: Our budget was balanced in the 1972-73 fiscal year and we showed a surplus of $154,000.

CONTACT: What factors have caused the college to go from a surplus in '72-73 to the present deficit situation?

CROWLEY: Well, it is a combination of things, specifically some national trends that have affected every college in the country. For several years, fewer high school graduates have opted for college. They had their own reasons, but many were going to vocational schools and junior colleges, or they entered the job market. It is common for colleges to have empty dorms. These same dorms were filled to capacity in the 60's. With the baby boom over and fewer of the available students going to college, everyone in higher education has to retrench their operations for lower, but stable enrollments. Enrollment at Saint Joseph's has followed the national averages. We had a slight decline, but we are on the upswing again. No college, though, can expect to reach the numbers it had on its campus in the 60's.

Along with that, the other national trend that everyone is aware of is inflation. So much of our annual budget is made up of fixed costs that our expenditures increase through inflation regardless of what our enrollment is.

"OUR PRE-APPLICATIONS . . . ARE UP 150 PERCENT OVER LAST YEAR."

CONTACT: What are the areas of the budget which have been most affected by inflation?

CROWLEY: Food and fuel. In 1972-73 we paid $93,000 for coal. This year we will pay in excess of $240,000. That is an increase of 158 percent. As far as food is concerned, everyone can relate to that. We feed 1000 students three times a day. That cost figure is $600,000 for this year. Those two items alone have increased our costs $277,000 in one year.

CONTACT: The increase in fees which will go into effect at the beginning of the second semester will raise room cost $50 and board cost $75. How much will the $125 increase offset the deficit?

Inflation and the College Budget

HOW SAINT JOSEPH'S FIGHTS THE MONEY CRUNCH

CROWLEY: The fee increase will provide an additional $100,000, but that will not cover all our increased costs. If we knew the rate of inflation would have been so rapid, we would have instituted the fee increase last September.

CONTACT: If the fee increase does not cover the deficit, what else can be done?

CROWLEY: There are many things that can and are being done. Obviously, the fee increase is one, but while we increase our revenue, we have to cut our costs. Since our first deficit projection, we have cut $91,000 from our physical plant operations. Departments were consolidated, people were reassigned. The major consideration is the expenditure in the academic area in contractual salaries. These cannot be adjusted immediately. So what we are presently doing is analyzing those academic areas which produce the best revenue and build upon them. Along with that we are evaluating programs which have declining student interest and making the necessary adjustments to get maximum efficiency.

CONTACT: How will the changes in the academic areas affect the college's viability?

CROWLEY: For the last four months committees have been examining the entire structure of the college and its present academic programs. Their findings show that we are overstaffed. Over the years we have built up a faculty which was suited for a student body of 1500. This semester we have 1064 students. Classes have obviously gotten smaller so we have to reallocate professor hours and responsibilities. In doing this we will be able to staff as effectively as ever and still have viable programs. Instead of hurting the college's academic programs, we are improving our position. We are changing our profile to fit the number of students we have and to offer the programs that they show an interest in.

CONTACT: In your position as financial controller, what other effects will benefit the college in the future?

CROWLEY: I believe in meeting our budget problem, we will become much more efficient. Anytime you do that you are improving. Since we began efforts to eliminate this present deficit we have examined all cost areas, consolidated help, adjusted work loads, analyzed power costs and eliminated inefficient operations. That will make us stronger, but that in itself is not enough. The other consideration we must face is enrollment. If we had just 100 more students, we would increase our revenue by $275,000. That increase coupled with the cost cutting would put us in excellent shape.

"IF PEOPLE ARE VERY POSITIVE, AS WELL AS REALISTIC, WE WILL BE ABLE TO HANDLE THE CURRENT PROBLEMS. IT IS SIMPLY A MATTER OF FAITH IN THE INSTITUTION."

CONTACT: Are you talking about an additional 100 students per year, or just 100 on campus right now?

CROWLEY: Well, I would love to have an additional 100 students every September, but I mean just 100 students in the next freshman class.

CONTACT: Is it realistic to believe we can recruit an additional 100 students?

CROWLEY: Absolutely, and the evidence for that is to be found in the last two freshman classes. The enrollment was 320 and 340. That is the first time in four years that we have been over 300 freshmen. If we continue that trend for two more years we would have the 100 additional students. But I don't think we will have to wait that long if the current pre-applications continue as they are. Currently we are up 150 percent over last year.

CONTACT: This issue of CONTACT carries stories about the $250,000 Lilly grant and the $370,000 from the alumni. With that sort of income, many people wonder how there can be any state of financial exigency.

CROWLEY: The first problem is that you have to draw a distinction between what is capital gift money, what is endowment money and what is operating expense. The $370,000 pledged by the alumni was part of the $1,800,000 pledged during the Brick-by-Brick campaign. That is capital gift money, money that is to be used for capital improvements that were necessary after the fire. Of that total, we have received more than $500,000 in cash. Last summer we spent over $600,000 in campus renovation. As more of the pledges come in, we will use them to first, pay off the remaining cost of the summer projects and then begin to evaluate the next step. Again, all that money received from the campaign is for capital improvements and not operating expense.

CONTACT: How does the Lilly gift fit into the financial picture?

CROWLEY: The Lilly gift is a totally different kind of gift than what we have received in the past. They are helping to endow our general education program, Core. We will place the $250,000 in an endowment fund and utilize the earnings to offset costs in that academic area. As endowment, the grant will serve the college for years to come since we only use the annual interest for expenses.

CONTACT: How do you define operating expenses?

CROWLEY: That is what it costs us to pay our teachers, feed our students and keep the lights on in the library.

CONTACT: Are these three areas of capital income, endowment and operating expenses the areas which are the most critical for the efficient operation of the college?

CROWLEY: Yes, but there is something more to it. So much of what concerns us today is psychological as well as financial. If people are positive, as well as realistic, we can handle the current problems. It simply becomes a matter of faith in the institution. And that faith has to extend from the students through the faculty to all of Saint Joseph's alumni, friends and family.

CONTACT: In order to restore that faith of some people who might have read those inaccurate news reports, what should be cleared up about the college's present financial situation?

CROWLEY: First, it was reported that the college would have a projected deficit this year of $437,000. That is incorrect! That figure was a projection, and the data used to reach that figure has changed considerably. It was based on a fee structure which has changed and costs that have been cut. It was never meant to be anything other than a projection of a possible deficit if things did not change. Things have and are changing.

Secondly, the news article indicated that the Brick-by-Brick pledges were not being met. That is not true. Pledges are being met and we are looking for the most opportune time to get the best market value from some of our gifts, such as securities. That is simply a matter of timing.

Another misleading statement was that an undetermined number of faculty would be cut. What we are doing is adjusting our faculty to reflect our enrollment. We are consolidating and becoming more efficient with faculty hours. Only a minimum number of faculty positions will be reduced.

CONTACT: What do you see in the near future as for as the college's operations are concerned?

CROWLEY: Our immediate concern is to have a balanced budget. We are very hopeful of that. As I have already discussed, the college has taken significant steps to reduce labor and cut costs and expenditures. These, along with the fee increase, should bring us back into line. We are in a somewhat better position than many other schools are at this time. We went through something similar to this situation four years ago. We made the necessary adjustments then, and we are doing it now. But, honestly, I don't want this to sound like we are just shuffling numbers on a piece of paper. We need continued support of those who believe in us.

The solution to our current situation is fourfold. We have to increase the number of students on campus, continue the successful development programs for endowment, broaden the base of alumni support and streamline our operations to reach maximum efficiency.

We are doing all of that right now. I am confident of Saint Joseph's future. We are doing what is necessary.

Joyous Fellowship

*Emmanuel, our king and lawgiver, long-awaited Savior of the nations:
Come and save us, O Lord our God.*

Dear Alumni,

Christmas is always a time for being cheerful, loving and kind. Some would say this is not a year when that can be. Whatever difficulties each of us has, each of us should be buoyant with joy during this season. That's what we want to be. Joyous that God came to us in Christ to proclaim His love for us. Sometimes gloom penetrates our attitudes and robs us of the happiness in our relationship with God. Let this not be.

Were it not for Christmas and the love and hope of the Good News that Christ has come among us, there would be no Saint Joseph's College, or a Notre Dame, or any other college committed to that infant born at Bethlehem. But the infant Jesus did come. The message to all of us in His coming should cheer us. Those of us in the educational apostolate are joyful that we have this annual opportunity to declare and to submit that our lives, our labor and our love will continue to be shared with those who come to live with us and reflect with us on life's meaning. Particularly what it means to live a life in a world that Christ has asked us to help save.

Let us this Christmas ask God to show us the way of discarding the fears and anxieties that beset us. Let us ask him to breathe His spirit of peace within us, that we can, each of us, radiate our joyous fellowship with Him in all we do to help Him save the world.

Sincerely in Christ,

Charles Banet, C.P.S.

Lilly Endowment Grants $250,000 To Implement College's Core Curriculum

Saint Joseph's College has received a $250,000 grant from Lilly Endowment, Inc., of Indianapolis, for the endowment of the college's Core curriculum. This is the second Lilly grant the college has received. The first, of $250,000, was to aid in campus redevelopment following the Administration Building fire of 1973.

"This grant for the development of Core is recognition of the program as an excellent method of structuring liberal arts education," says Dr. John Nichols, Core director.

"This grant is an excellent beginning for our endowment program," college president, Fr. Charles Banet reports. We intend to use the Lilly grant as an incentive—a challenge to our trustees, alumni and friends to help us meet the $750,000 goal we plan to raise as an academic endowment for the Core program."

"With the Lilly grant and the influential support that it represents, we should be able to obtain more substantial gifts," explains Nichols. "We've made a breakthrough in getting the program recognized and evaluated outside the college."

FROM THE EDITOR . . .

The new look! You probably had to look twice at this issue of CONTACT to make sure it was the same publication you have been receiving. We have been considering changes for quite some time, but we never quite found the right combination. Well, from now on, CONTACT will be different, not only typographically, but in content. Class Notes and the sports round up will remain put we hope to bring the reader a more complete picture of Saint Joseph's.

A new feature we hope to continue is the interview. The first, on page one, is with Tom Crowley '66 and presents the college's approach to coping with inflation. In the future we will also offer more feature material on departments, professors, programs, alumni and students of Saint Joseph's. An example of that material is the Core program presentation on the back page.

CONTACT will have its growing pains, and there will be further changes, changes we hope will give you a more complete picture of Saint Joseph's. We invite your comments. ED.

Alumni Surpass Campaign Goal; Brick-by-Brick Totals $370,000

When the alumni board set a goal of $300,000 for their part in the Brick-by-Brick campaign, we figured that it would be a tough challenge," explains board president, Phil Wilhelm '63. "That was quite a target since the college continued the general fund campaign for operational expenses while it asked the alumni to support the capital campaign."

"Well, the alumni did what was expected, and then they did a lot more. At the close of the capital campaign the alumni had surpassed their goal and topped $370,000," Wilhelm adds.

"I wish we could take the credit and say it was something we did," says alumni board financial director, Jim Madden '64, "but it wasn't. All we had to do was offer them a challenge and get out of their way. What was even more gratifying," Madden continues, "is that so many alumni contributed to both the capital campaign and the annual fund. If we combined the total contributions from alumni in the last year, it would surpass $450,000."

"Although that total is impressive, it would be considerably larger if we included the foundation grants which the college has received through alumni cooperation. Three grants received in the past year were made possible by alumni who worked for the donating corporation or foundation. They went to their employers and told our story. I guess you could say they opened the door for us. The alumni have proved that they are doers over and over again," he concludes.

Another important alumni contribution to the college has been their participation in the recruitment of students. More than 350 alumni volunteers are involved in admissions work.

"They contact prospective students who live near them, talk to them about the college and answer any questions students may have about Saint Joseph's," explains program director, Jerry Walker '59. "The program strengthens our admissions operation in many ways. Not only are the students contacted, they are personally contacted, which makes a big difference to the prospective student.

"We all know that recruiting students is a greater challenge every year and any time we can increase the number of students we talk to, we believe we can increase our freshman class. We know this program is working, because a recent admissions report shows pre-applications for next fall up 150 percent," Walker concludes.

Two Grads Selected To SJC Hall Of Fame

The Saint Joseph's College Hall of Fame ballot which was printed in the May, 1974 issue of CONTACT struck a responsive chord among alumni. Forty alumni responded with almost six dozen nominees. More than a half-century of Saint Joseph's athletics were represented in the nominations. Five sports were represented. Several clerics, including one bishop, were nominated.

The screening committee considered more than a dozen former Puma greats as serious contenders for the Hall of Fame. Ultimately, Henry Kauffman '47 and Ken Bates '58 were elected. These men will be inducted into the Hall of Fame Jan. 18, 1975, during the halftime of the Puma-Evansville basketball game.

Chris Kauffman of Louisville proved to be the most successful nominator. His letter, on behalf of his father, caused the committee to explore his father's exploits in greater detail and resulted in his nomination and election.

The most prolific nominator proved to be an anonymous 70-year-old "forgotten '20's hero" who nominated no less than 14 of his contemporaries from the "roaring" decade.

The nominating committee is interested in receiving specifics on the careers of Saint Joseph's stars of the '20's and '30's. Unfortunately the information available on that era is sketchy. Additionally, the Puma stars of the post-war era are under consideration for nomination at the July 1975, meeting of the Alumni Board of Directors. Alumni who missed this year's ballot have until May, 1975, to forward their nomination to the Alumni Director for consideration by the nomination committee.

Nominations may be based on athletic prowess while an undergraduate or on athletic achievements after leaving Saint Joseph's, or a combination of both. Alumni cannot be nominated until five years after graduation. Hence, for the 1975 election, alumni from 1970 and prior will be eligible.

Adams '54, Alumni Merit Recipient

Olewinski Sets Five Records As Pumas Close '74 Season Winless

Despite an 0-9 season, the Saint Joseph's College Pumas had a few bright spots, most notably the pass receiving of sophomore flanker Larry Olewinski, who set three school records one conference mark, and was named to the first team All-ICC.

OLEWINSKI

The business administration major, a 1973 graduate of Lorain Catholic High School, caught 53 passes this season for 861 yards, bettering the marks of 50 catches and 694 yards set last season by Joe Pallotta. Olewinski also broke the existing mark of 33 pass receptions in a conference season by grabbing 35 in six contests for an average of 5.8 per game, including a single-game high of ten against Butler University for a school-record 171 yards, which breaks his own of 169 set only five weeks earlier. The ten receptions fell only one short of another school record.

Head coach Bill Jennings looks forward to two more years of coaching this wide receiver. "Larry runs picture book pattern, which makes it possible for the quarterback to just throw the ball to a certain spot and be confident that Larry will be there to catch it. He may not be the biggest or fastest receiver I've ever coached, but he makes up for this with his extensive knowledge of defenders and patterns."

Olewinski admits that one thing in his favor is that he and quarterback Jeff Taylor will play together for two more seasons. "Jeff knows what to expect of me, and I know what to expect from him, which makes both of our jobs easier. Sure, I was disappointed with our record this year, but if we stay healthy and get a few breaks, we will be a fine football team. We have many young players, and experience and knowledge of each other will help us in the future."

Despite the return of five lettermen, including an All-American center, Saint Joseph's 1974-75 basketball success could ultimately depend on the progress of several freshmen and further development or returning non-letter reserves.

"We had a good, solid front line that did most of our scoring and rebounding last year," points out coach John Weinert, "but we didn't get the scoring punch we needed in the backcourt. As a result, teams could gang up on the front line and this season we need backcourt scoring to give our offense a balanced attack."

Led by 6-6 senior center Jim Thordsen, (Santurce, P.R.) the Pumas were 20-10 a year ago and champions of the NCAA Division II Great Lakes Regional. A Little All-American, Thordsen was the most valuable player on the Pumas and in the Indiana Collegiate Conference for the second straight year, as well as the All-Regional Tourney MVP. He averaged 25.9 points and 8.5 rebounds per game while handling the pivot with an excellence unmatched in school history.

Dave Huneryager is a major loss by graduation at forward, but monogram winners Kyle Wiggs and Alan Rockwell are back. Wiggs (6-6, jr.-Ripon, Wis.) won all-tourney honors, third-team all-ICC laurels and averaged 10.4 points and 9.4 rebounds during his brilliant sophomore season. Rebounding is his strong suit and he's one of the toughest forwards in SJC history.

Steve Scharrer, (6-5, sr., Flint, Mich.) returns to the front line to add board strength and varsity experience.

Alan Rockwell, (6-5, sr.-Rensselaer, Ind.) was a front line reserve last winter and he had his finest games in the pressurized NCAA tourney. He seems a natural to complete the front line, where he averaged 8.5 points and 4.5 rebounds per outing in 1973-74.

Greg Stegeman, (6-6, soph.-Cincinnati, Ohio) and Ron Johnson, (6-6, soph.-Xenia, Ohio) saw extensive reserve duty last year and they'll be counted on to provide solid backup help this year. Stegeman relieved Thordsen in the pivot during 21 games and Johnson saw action in 14 encounters.

George Mills, (6-0, sr.-Lafayette, Ind.) is the first of two backcourt lettermen. His scoring average was 5.0 in 28 games a year ago, and he showed an ability to score key baskets while ignoring intense pressure. The other monogram winner, Pete Santana, (6-3, jr.-Guayama, P.R.) scored at a 2.9 rate and has shown flashes of brilliance, especially in playmaking. Non-letter returnees Jerry Klamrowski (6-0, Milwaukee, Wis.) and Jim Matej, (6-2, soph.-Hammond, Ind.) join the scramble for starting guard duty.

Freshmen have to be something of an unknown factor, but Weinert has recruited several performers with bright credentials. Several guards could possibly give that necessary scoring punch from long range.

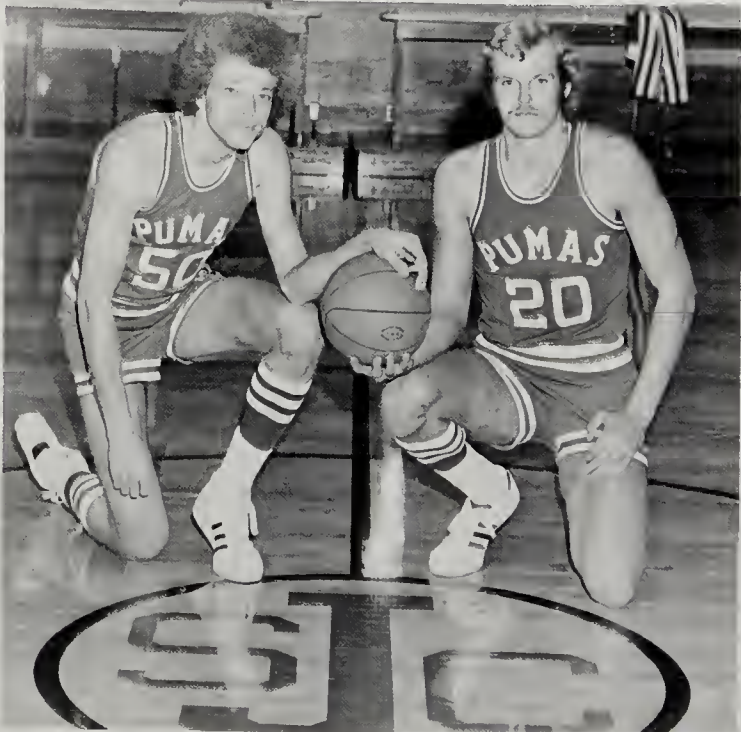

One is Duane Gray, (6-0, Chicago, Ill.) an all-city performer who is a great natural shooter with quickness and speed that additionally make him a top-notch defender.

Tom Gallant, (6-3, Saginaw, Mich.) comes with impressive high school credentials as a scorer, rebounder and playmaker.

One of the most pleasant surprises among the newcomers could be Charles Hickman, (6-6, Grand Rapids, Mich.). A junior college transfer, his credentials include solid potential as a rebounder and scorer.

Joining the backcourt picture is Tom Phillipow, (6-4, North Muskegon, Mich.) a former all-state high schooler. He averaged 20 points and 16.1 rebounds per game last year and is regarded as a top-notch defender.

"If we get that necessary scoring support from the backcourt so that opponents can't overload on our front line, we could be tough," conclude Weinert.

Puma Captains: Captains for the 1974-75 Puma basketball team are All-American center, Jim Thordsen (left) and All-Conference forward, Kyle Wiggs.

CORE - A Student's Explanation In 1969, Saint Joseph's initiated the Core curriculum as its general education program. It is a four year integrated academic program, unique in its approach to education. The cartooning and copy below are a student's explanation of the program. Created by Dorothy Colgan (sr., St. Meinrad, Ind.), the work has been produced as an admissions brochure and is being distributed to 10,000 high school seniors to help explain core.

everybody's got to major in something at College.
 your major field is the answer to your question "How do i go about making a good living?" in your major you learn the skills and information to help you find a successful career.

BUT -- WHAT ABOUT ALL THAT OTHER CLASS TIME??

- 1) MOST COLLEGES fill THIS time with what they call "GENERAL EDUCATION REQUIREMENTS." usually these courses have little or nothing to do with your major.
 THEY LOOK SOMETHING LIKE THIS

2) BUT AT SAINT JOSEPH'S,

the CORE CURRICULUM replaces all "required courses." We like to think of CORE not as requirements, but as a SEQUENCE OF COURSES THAT, THROUGH LECTURES, READINGS, FILMS AND DEBATES, DELVE INTO THE QUESTION, "HOW SHALL I GO ABOUT MAKING A LIFE WORTH LIVING?"

- the Core approach has taken these "required courses" and blended them into a 4-YEAR SEARCH to examine the meaning of man's achievement and problems
- we study man in many ages (greek, roman, modern, contemporary....) and many places (africa, india, america, china....) and find what is DIFFERENT and UNIQUE about him. BUT MORE IMPORTANTLY -- we discover that MAN ISN'T REALLY ALL THAT DIFFERENT. Man of all ages has grappled with the same problems -- who he is, why he is here, where he is headed, how he can live peacefully with other men.... The times and places change, but we're all pretty much alike.
- Core raises these questions for you. So you can rethink them, compare them, analyze them and finally, come up with answers that will help you live a WORTHWHILE LIFE.

THE USUAL WAY

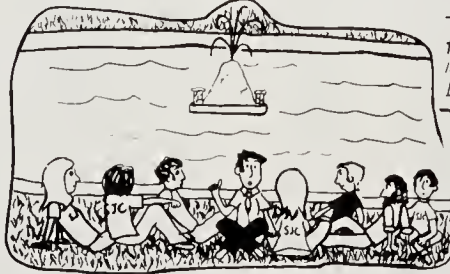

CORE SUCCEEDS AT THIS BY TRANSFORMING THE OLD TEXT BOOK - LECTURE - TEST APPROACH INTO A MUCH MORE DYNAMIC AND PARTICIPATORY PROGRAM.

→ HOW?

FIRST → the lectures are given by a WIDE VARIETY of professors from all departments, as well as guest lecturers --- ranging from scientists to swamis.

SECOND → CORE includes an important intermediate or CORE STEP in the learning process THE SMALL DISCUSSION GROUP

This discussion class follows all lectures and is of vital importance because:

→ it gives you the opportunity to meet with 15 to 20 other students and a faculty leader to discuss lectures, readings (novels, biographies, histories, journals...) film and personal experience concerning the subject matter. Creative projects and written assignments will help further develop your individual point of view.

- it will give you a chance to voice your opinions, your arguments, your concerns. you gain more insight into, and a deeper perspective and dimension of, not only the topic, but your own perception as well.
- Not only do you learn, but many times you help the prof learn. Core is a learning process for him too. He is not only TEACHER, but CO-LEARNER -- because some topics discussed are not in his area of specialization. He is most willing to hear your views.

THAT, IN SHORT, IS WHAT CORE is all about. A CURRICULUM THAT PARALLELS AND STRENGTHENS YOUR MAJOR, ADDS MORE DEFINITION TO YOUR PRESENT UNDERSTANDING, CREATES THE POSSIBILITY FOR A MORE WORTHWHILE FUTURE.

SAINT JOE'S IS DEDICATED TO ITS STUDENTS.

AND TO THE CORE PROGRAM.

BECAUSE IT GIVES THE STUDENT A BROAD AND STIMULATING AND UNIQUE APPROACH TO EDUCATION -- AND A DEEPER UNDERSTANDING AND APPRECIATION OF HIMSELF.

SO IF YOU'RE READING THIS IN STUDYHALL, or waiting FOR THE BELL TO RING TO GO TO YOUR 10 o'clock class, CONSIDER A CHANGE... CONSIDER YOUR FUTURE... consider CORE
